

Omsfield [?] March 20 1852

Dear Brother,

In great haste I drop you a few lines. Mother is going to the depot with me to put your money in the office and she is almost ready so I have not much time to spare to day. I will say however that we are all well. Mother is very smart for eighty years she boards with Brother Parsons yet and fares like a queen. She shall never want for any good thing for you know that this promise is to them who put there trust in the Lord. Dianthea [?] and her children are in Otiseo on a visit. Jerusha and child in the village. About the money I hope you will not feel hard because there is no more of it for I should have paid whatever sum Father had directed (if within the bounds of reason) but I suppose he was afraid there would not be enough to carry Mother and him through. Write again and I will answer.
